DAC7 rules for digital platforms comparing EU member states implementation edited by Juan Manuel Vázquez Félix Desmyttere Council Directive 2021/514 of the European Union DAC7 introduces among other measures a standardized tax reporting requirement for digital platform operators. Under this requirement, platform operators must collect, validate, keep records and report to the tax authorities of member states specific personal and transactional data concerning their sellers. The reported information is then automatically exchanged between tax authorities. This book provides a comprehensive and systematic assessment of how DAC7 rules for digital platforms have been implemented by member states in their national laws and examines whether common or divergent approaches and interpretations of specific provisions have emerged. A systematic exploration and comparative analysis of the implementation of DAC7 rules is essential for several reasons, including the following: certain key definitions within DAC7 lack clarity and precision; interpretative and practical guidelines on DAC7 issued by competent member state authorities are not always aligned; the definitions of some elements of DAC7 rules, e.g., penalties and enforcement, remain a competence of member states and therefore vary significantly across jurisdictions; and DAC7 rules interact with existing similar legislation and reporting requirements in member states' domestic tax regimes, adding additional layers of complexity. These issues are covered in depth by experts who contribute national reports from 19 EU member states, combining legal analysis with practical implementation insights. Two introductory chapters provide an overview of DAC7 rules at the EU level and offer a comparative analysis of key differences and similarities in implementation across EU member states. Visual tools simplify the complex application of DAC7 definitions in practice and facilitate cross-jurisdictional comparison of the directive's implementation. This book is the result of a conference organized by the Amsterdam Centre for Tax Law (ACTL) of the University of Amsterdam (UvA) in November 2023 under the umbrella of the research project 'Designing the tax system for a cashless platform-based and technology-driven society' (CPT project). The book will be of significant value to a wide range of stakeholders impacted by DAC7. In particular, it will assist businesses operating digital platforms, including non-EU-based, in assessing DAC7-related risks and compliance obligations across the European Union; legislators and tax authorities of EU member states in identifying areas that require further harmonization or clarification; tax lawyers and professionals in managing legal challenges related to DAC7; businesses and individuals selling via digital platforms who may be affected by DAC7 reporting requirements; and academics and researchers interested in tax transparency frameworks and the interaction between tax law, EU law, and platform regulation.

Recidivism belongs to the main categories of criminology, crime policy, and criminal justice. If the target of preventing offenders from reoffending is taken seriously, crime policy should be measured by success of certain penal sanctions in terms of relapses. Also, institutions that deal directly with crime and offenders need to get basic information on the consequences of their actions, particularly general knowledge about offender groups at risk of reoffending. All these are reasons why representative recidivism studies are needed. Meanwhile, a lot of European countries gather systematic and comprehensive information on recidivism periodically and on a national level. This volume presents an exemplary collection of such endeavors: Austria, Estonia, France,
